

A report on career exhibition by Education Department in collaboration with Ikusasa lethu Education Project

From the 17th to 19th February 2015 Ikusasa lethu Education was invited by the Education Department to take a lead on the dress up career fair that was held in different districts in KZN, the main aim was to allow kids to have a taste of how it feels like to dress according to their chosen career path.

The career fair was held for three days, starting at Ndumo district at St Phillips full service school, on the second day it was held at Mzila full (Mkhanyakude District) service school and lastly it was held at Hlabisa District.

The career days were a great success; life orientation teachers in their schools were present and made sure that the event turned out as it was planned. Department of education officials were also present to ensure that the African child benefits from differing organizations and stakeholders that were invited to part take in the career fair.
